The afternoon settles in gently, unhurried and warm, as sunlight filters through half-drawn curtains. It's the kind of day meant for staying in, where time slows down and the simplest moments feel the most comforting. Surrounded by friends, the room fills with laughter, soft chatter, and the familiar rhythm of togetherness.

Between turns, conversations drift effortlessly, from old stories to new dreams, from laughter to comfortable silences. It's in these moments that friendships feel the strongest, where nothing needs to be planned, yet everything feels complete.

A chapter that celebrates togetherness, nostalgia, and the quiet joy of doing nothing, yet feeling everything - Saheli.
